

Index of grammatical terms

This index contains the English terms and expressions that have been used in the presentation of Latin grammar.

In some cases, the same item can be found under two or more different entries; for instance, Personal construction of the infinitive can be found under Infinitive and under Personal construction. This will help students to find the requested item more easily. Also, in some cases it makes more sense to name the grammatical item in the singular or in the plural, independently from whether the main entry is in singular or plural; for instance, under the entry of Prepositions (it is customary to use the plural when introducing this concept) we find the sub-entry Lack of prep., obviously Lack of preposition, while further down we find the sub-entry Preps. of one case, obviously Prepositions of one case. The presence or absence of a final -s will make it clear.

The numbers make reference to the numbered paragraphs, not to the pages.
